Andrew Mitchell:
A Life in the Treetops

25 October 2005

Andrew Mitchell is Director of the Global Canopy Programme, which he established in 2001, to fund and co-ordinate a worldwide programme of research into the impact of climate change on forest canopies.

Andrew has been involved in many research and conservation projects; has contributed as a TV producer and broadcaster to the BBC, National Geographic and feature films; and is the author of eight books, including The Enchanted Canopy, as well as scientific papers and many popular articles on natural history, to name but a few of his many achievements.

On alternate Tuesdays from October to April at 8.00pm (doors open at 7.30pm).
